Your Story Unscripted

Bringing People Closer Together

What's Needed:

- 10 to 30 minutes, depending on event
- Our cast to attend your conference or gathering
- A time and place where all attendees are in one place together
- A prompt or big idea we want people to talk about

The Theater of Public Policy infuses your gathering with personal storytelling and improvisational humor, making your event more fun, more exciting and above all more memorable.

Here is how it works:

- Together, the client and The Theater of Public Policy develop a topic or idea around which the event will revolve
- In an iterative process, we invite an attendee to think about the theme and then stand up and share her or his personal story
- Our cast improvises a scene or two inspired by the attendee's personal account
- After a few minutes of fun and hilarity, the cast asks for another story from the audience and the show goes on
- Depending on the size of the gathering and the length of the event, The Theater of Public Policy performs up to a half-dozen unscripted stories bring audience members closer together

No two performances are the same but the results are always surprise and delight. And the best news - we can work with almost any budget. Contact us to find out how we can inject a little intelligent humor into your next meeting or event.
